To the Gigantic Playground Hiring Team,

I'm glad to recommend Jeffery Ferguson — "Phoenix." We've collaborated for several years across a number of projects at the intersection of AI, strategy, and technology, and I list him as a collaborator on my own professional profile for good reason — his material and thinking have made their way into work I've shared with my own network and, at points, into my own writing.

Jeffery drafted a technical CV and helped me think through positioning at a point when I needed an outside, capable perspective on how to present my own work — not a small thing to ask of someone, and he did it well. Beyond that, we've traded business-plan material, presentation work, and product concepts back and forth for years, the kind of ongoing exchange that only works when both sides trust the other's judgment.

Jeffery thinks broadly and connects ideas across domains in a way I've found genuinely useful, and he's reliable to work with over the long haul. I recommend him.
